Vrnjačka Banja spa is the largest and most famous spa resort in Serbia and has traditionally been a very attractive tourist resort for relaxation and recreation. The spa is located in central Serbia, about 200 km south of Belgrade. Vrnjačka Banja spa is very well connected with all parts of Serbia by road and railway route that stretches down the Western Morava valley connecting the Balkans highways, Belgrade – Sofia and Belgrade – Athens, and by good local roads with its forest – mountainous hinterland creating a wide area of preserved natural environment. This mountain complex comprises high mountains Kopaonik (2017m), Željin (1785m), Stolovi (1376m) and nearby gentle Goč (1216m). The climate is moderate continental. The nearby mountains influence the Vrnjačka Spa microclimate making it rather specific and very pleasant. Summers are moderately warm with chilly mornings and evenings, and winters are snowy with no sharp frosts. The average annual temperature is 10.5°C, whereas in summer it is 20°C.
