The summerhouse of general Jovan Belimarković, the King Aleksandar Obrenović's regent prior to his coming of age, is along with the Vrnjačka church, the oldest and most recognizable building. Erected on the slope above the hot thermal spring it was constructed following the model of north – Italian - Polish castles of that time, following the conceptual design of his nephew, the civil engineer Pavle Denić, projected and supervised by Austrian civil engineer Franc Winter. Its construction lasted from 1888 to 1894 whereas in 1889 the greatest part of the work was done. It was the dwelling of Belimarković's descendants until the 1970's, and in 1968 it was purchased with the intention to be used in cultural purposes. By the Law on Protection of Cultural Heritage it was declared to be a cultural value of great significance for the Republic of Serbia. The Culture Castle is run by the institution “Cultural Center” - Vrnjačka Banja.
